Performance review

- The S&P/ASX 300 Accumulation Index returned -6.16% for the month of October, with Utilities and Information Technology the top performing sectors and Financials and Materials the weakest performers for the period.
- The Ralton Australian Shares portfolio returned -5.53% for the month, outperforming the benchmark by 0.62%.
- For the month of October, being overweight Consumer Staples and Information Technology added relative value to the portfolio. The portfolio's underweight to Materials and Health Care were the key detractors from portfolio returns.

Northern Star Resources (NST, +5.78%) – continued to outperform during October as the market continues to factor in the growth focused around the recent acquisition of the Pogo gold mine in Alaska. We have seen NST deliver strong operational improvements after it acquired its mines at Jundee and Kalgoorlie in WA. This is focused around changing the way the mining teams operate in a whole range of different ways. The Pogo operation is very similar in nature to the company's Australian operations, and they expect to be able to implement the same type of productivity improvements. Our recent meeting with management left us comfortable with the strategy. As these benefits pass through we will see a substantial earnings and valuation uplift. NST continues to offer further upside from its core Australian operations. The balance sheet is net cash, leaving the company well positioned to implement its plans.

Woolworths Group (WOW, +1.25%) – strongly outperformed against a weak period in the Australian equity market following recent underperformance.

Recent trading at Woolworths has been impacted by the highly successful 'Little Shop' campaign at Coles as well as its competitor providing free reusable bags as shoppers struggled to change shopping habits with retailers looking to cease the use of disposable bags. We took the view that the impact was transitory, supported by key indicators including transaction numbers and customer satisfaction remaining strong. Overall, the outlook for the supermarket industry looks solid with Coles likely to become a rational competitor for WOW after its spin-out from WES and food price deflation beginning to ease. Management execution remains strong. Balance sheet strength offers flexibility and valuation remains undemanding compared to domestic defensive names.

Spark Infrastructure (SKI, -2.68%) – outperformed the market during October as investors sought shelter in the volatile market environment. The stock provides exposure to an attractive defensive position from an efficient operator with a growing earnings stream backed by its high-quality electricity distribution networks. Most of the SKI network is in the middle of a regulatory period which implies stable predictable revenues for the next ~2.5 years. Future capital growth is underpinned by the $2-4.9bn of contingent capex projects included in Transgrid's recent determination and the optionality in its other networks in Victoria and South Australia. Potential future tax headwinds appear to be more than compensated by a distribution yield of >6% that is expected to grow at CPI levels.

Boral Ltd	Overweight
Woodside Petroleum	Overweight
Nufarm Ltd	Overweight

Boral Ltd (BLD, -18.81%) – de-rated during the month of October following a period of strong performance in the September quarter. Underperformance occurred in the absence of company specific news as the market became increasingly concerned with the potential for a weaker outlook in the US housing market. Boral remains confident that the US housing construction has many years to run and while activity is currently subdued

(with US Homebuilders also falling during the period), growth remains, albeit at a lower level. The recent FY18 result showed that Boral has growth drivers broadly spread across its Australian and United States operations and illustrated that the company continues to manage operations well in the face of increasing input costs, which have impacted peers. The most pleasing part of the result was the ability of the company to raise product prices to offset cost pressures and, looking forward, we expect margins to expand gradually. Key drivers remain in place as US housing activity is supported by under-supply and current government infrastructure spend more than offsets housing weakness within BLD's domestic operations. The potential for long-term growth is also evident in the company's expanding US FlyAsh operations. We remain positive on the potential of BLD's expanded US operations following the Headwater acquisition as well as the company's exposure to the infrastructure boom in Australia. BLD is trading at attractive multiples, and we remain confident in the company's outlook.

Woodside Petroleum (WPL, -9.67%) – suffered from oil price weakness during the month of October along with other Australian Energy sector exploration and production stocks, as the Brent oil price dropped from US$84.94/bbl to US$74.84/bbl. Outside of this negative oil market headwind, WPL's September quarter report delivered good overall operational performance and higher realised product pricing. Total September quarter production of 23.08mmbob was 5% above 22.08mmbob delivered in the June 18 quarter. Expected LNG price rises were also delivered over the September 2018 quarter, particularly at Wheatstone where LNG Trains 1 and 2 continue to run above plan. Overall, all key WPL projects remain on schedule and budget. Near term growth projects at Greater Western Flank Phase 2 (under budget and 98% complete) and Greater Enfield (on budget and 72% complete) continue to deliver excellent progress. During the month the Development and Exploitation Plan for the SNE oil field offshore Senegal was submitted to the Government of Senegal by the Joint Venture. Scarborough LNG front end engineering and design (FEED) entry is expected in 1Q19. Browse to NWS LNG development final investment decision (FID) target is in 2020. There was no change to the company's guidance for projected production growth to 100mmbob by 2020 (+35% from 2017). We remain attracted to WPL's exposure to Asia's growing demand for gas and its strong pipeline of growth options.

Nufarm Ltd (NUF, -13.53%) – underperformed the market during October as the company began trading again after raising $303 million in a discounted entitlement offer. While we were not expecting the capital call we were supportive of the raising given it positions the company strongly to execute on the multiple growth options we foresee for the company. Company performance has been impacted by weak seasonal conditions and elevated concern regarding their glyphosate (weed killer) products resulting in the downgrade to its earnings outlook. The main driver of the downgrade was dry conditions in Australia, which saw a substantial drop in sales in the crop protection market. We hold the view that the market is capitalising short-term earnings impacts from weather over the medium term which is providing a good opportunity to buy shares at depressed levels. We remain positive on the medium-term outlook for the group given the diversity of the markets it operates in, the recent European acquisitions and the upside potential from the Omega 3 commercialisation.
